How to Report Confirmation of Pregnancy
Review of Prenatal CPT II Codes

Using Current Procedural Terminology Category II (CPT® II) codes to report confirmation of pregnancy and prenatal care is important. These codes provide valuable information about patients' health, enabling health care providers to track improvements, identify gaps or opportunities, and facilitate timely interventions for better health outcomes.

Advantages of Using CPT II Codes

- Describe clinical components, test results, and procedures that are part of evaluation and management services
- Help report performance measures, identify patients who need increased clinical oversight, and close care gaps
- Decrease the need for chart requests, reducing administrative work
- Help align patients with relevant health and wellbeing programs

Why Submitting CPT II Codes for Confirmation of Pregnancy Matters

- Confirming pregnancy through CPT II codes (0500F) helps close prenatal care gaps and reduces extra administrative work.
- The codes also allow Florida Blue to identify and direct members to specific pregnancy and maternity health and wellbeing programs, such as our Healthy Addition® Prenatal Program. This comprehensive maternity care management program provides a coordinated approach to support high-risk pregnant members. It includes clinical assessments, personalized care planning, triage to appropriate resources, and protocol-driven engagement to address medical, emotional, and social needs. By providing this information, you can help your patients take advantage of available programs.
- Reporting with CPT II codes supports performance measures and helps identify patients who need additional clinical oversight.

Thank you for continuing to use CPT II codes to help capture important information that provides valuable insights, to better support you and your patients.
